Joseph Gemmill is a born entertainer. From impersonating Michael Jackson in talent shows as a child, to his most recent improvisational solo performances as a “one man band”, he’s demonstrated his versatility across performing arts disciplines and genres. Joe’s wide variety of talents and interests have taken him from being a break dancer, to performing as a vocalist and DJ in musical groups, to entertaining kids as a clown, to acting in film. Joe’s talent is matched only by his compassion for people. One of his current projects is organizing and performing at benefit shows for local non-profit charity organizations.
